Fiona Russell is a Blue Mountains sustainability artist whose work transforms reclaimed and natural materials into evocative pieces that highlight our relationship with the environment. Through her exhibitions and community projects, she encourages audiences to rethink waste, value local ecosystems, and engage creatively with climate action.

Presentation Precip

Discover the creative magic of transforming discarded objects into something truly special. This inspiring and engaging presentation celebrates the beauty of op-shop finds, forgotten treasures, and everyday materials that can be reimagined as quirky, whimsical artworks. Through stories, ideas, and practical examples, you'll discover how imagination can give old objects a new life and how creativity can help us recognise value in places others often overlook. Visit the Mythika Studios stall to explore and purchase a selection of unique handmade creations, each thoughtfully crafted from materials with a story to tell.
